PATRIMONY

The Pearl of the Morvan

At the springs of Saint-Honoré- les-Bains
The spa town has been known since Antiquity for the virtues and quality of its thermal waters. The Romans developed it until the 5th century.

A unique and exceptional heritage
many houses in Saint-Honoré- les-Bains have a distant origin. Some, old thatched cottages, have been renovated over the years. Others, particularly in the village, date from the middle and end of the 19th century. From 1855 onwards, with the development of the resort, new buildings appeared. In the thermal district, sumptuous villas, reflecting the audacious architecture of the spa towns, were built over the years.

These must-see villas can be discovered along the architectural heritage circuit on smartphone or tablet available at the tourist office.

An integral part of the Morvan
Regional Park of Morvan The resort has kept its landscapes intact and its natural and patrimonial wealth. Many possibilities for leisure, outdoor activities and cultural visits are offered to those who wish to get off the beaten track to enjoy a break from the wellbeing away from the crowds and pollution to benefit "at full lung" from the air and the calm of this "Pearl of the Morvan".
